Controls

would be eligible for the exemption if the owner made $20,000 in improvements.

All unimproved real estate and existing homes will be subject to the exemption, as well as new homes in which either the price was determined after completion of construction or in which wage rates are not changed by government action after the sales price is already set.

The council exempted also dues to nonprofit organizations, international shipping rates, royalties and copyrights, and miscellaneous items such as antiques, art objects, collector's coins and stamps, precious stones and mountings, rock and stone specimens and handicraft objects.

Also exempt are custom services and products made to individual order, such as wigs and special clothing, jewelry, framing pictures and fur apparel. Exemptions approved during the freeze, such as raw agricultural products, exports and imports, and financial securities, will remain in effect after the freeze expires.

Rumsfeld said the seven-member Price Commission is expected to announce soon, possibly Thursday, the permissible price standard that will govern items subject to price controls in the Phase 2 economic plan. The director, however, dodged specific questions on how the commission would apply the controls.

Not included in the list of exemptions were public utilities, reported earlier to be under consideration. Rumsfeld said the council decided against exempting public utilities, but declined to say why.

He told newsmen that other exemptions are being considered to the price controls and will be announced as the Phase 2 program proceeds.

Elsewhere on the economic front:

—The Federal Reserve Board announced a cut in its rediscount rate from 5 to 4½ per cent, reflecting a downturn in general interest rates. This rate is the interest the FED charges its member banks for borrowing. It was made clear however, that the move does not represent a push for more expansive monetary policies.

—The seven-member Price Commission continued its intensive work on final rules to govern price levels after the freeze ends this weekend. It is expected to disclose its decisions Thursday.

—The securities markets experienced another severe sinking spell. The average of 30 leading industrial stocks in the Dow Jones averages dropped 11.26 points to 826.15.

—The Treasury Department said it is trying to set up an early December meeting of finance officers of the top 10 non-Communist industrial nations for talks on the international monetary deadlock.

Aid

not for technical assistance, aid to the United Nations and supporting assistance.

He added he would support "limited authority" to pay salaries to AID employees, who number about 13,000 here and abroad. Previously, Mansfield had rejected the idea of any stopgap authority and said he doubted there would be time for Senate action on a continuing resolution by Nov. 15.

Administration forces in the Senate, meanwhile, dropped their effort to combine the economic and military aid bills.

"I'm now satisfied that our chances are better with separate bills," Republican Leader Hugh Scott said.

Damage $550

MT. JEWETT — State police here reported a one-car accident at 6:20 p.m. Wednesday on Rt. 219 near the intersection with Rt. 59 (Tack's Corners). They said no injuries resulted when a car operated by Wilbur E. Blake, 49, of Bradford that was traveling north on 219 went out of control on the icy roadway and went over an embankment. Damage was estimated at $550.

around this area without this airport."

Anthony Volpe, chief of the Federal Aviation Administration Flight Service Station at the airport, said his station was manned by seven men and provided round-the-clock briefings and flight and weather information service to pilots, both over the counter and by telephone. He said their direction finding equipment had been responsible for several aircraft "saves" over the past few years and added that three of his men had been awarded the FAA's "We Point With Pride" certificates for saving lost aircraft and that two other men are being considered for these awards.

Others who presented briefings were: William Cramer, Authority member from Elk County, a retired FAA official who said that "Bradford is one of the finest airports and has one of the best FAA stations in the Cleveland FAA district." Cramer was last employed at the Cleveland district, and Wayne Fesenmyer, chairman of the Authority who told the businessmen who ship considerable amounts of air freight through Bradford Airport that "we aren't yet satisfied with the Allegheny schedules, but we are working hard on the problem and hope to soon have better schedules."

Ray Johnson said that with the Allegheny-Mohawk merger all but finally approved in Washington, officials of both airlines are looking forward to a final tie-in of services by April 1, 1972. He intimated that better scheduling for Bradford would be a result of the merger.

During a discussion relating to needed runway and taxiway improvements that could run to some $400,000, it was brought out that the federal government, through the FAA, would pay one half the cost with the state financing one-half of the remainder, leaving the Authority with a $100,000 bill. Wayne Fesenmyer, chairman, said that would be impossible for the Authority to handle and added that he had been investigating the possibility of obtaining Appalachia funds amounting to about $50,000, which would leave the final $50,000 to the Authority to pay. Further assistance might also be arranged through other sources because of the "safety" requirements that must be met (tree removal, etc.).

Improvements needed include resurfacing of the secondary runway, some drainage ditching along that runway, tree removal and seal treatment of the main runway and the southwest taxiway. Fesenmyer and probably Bennett Friedman, Authority solicitor, will meet with Ap-palachia officials in Harrisburg in the near future to determine the exact amounts they can expect from that source. It was pointed out, however, that final Appalachia approval rested on FAA and state approval of the projects and their funding.

Bill Cramer, defending the cost of the needed improvements, told the group "I think the counties have to realize that the airport is providing them all a service, just as the highways do, and we can't let the airport deteriorate if we are going to continue this service which is essential to the expansion of industry in all the counties."

Fesenmyer told the group that it is not the desire of the Authority to let the "airport become a financial load on anyone's back." He reminded them that all the counties received benefits from the industries that use the airport and the tax base they provide for the counties.

With winter having already made its presence known at the airport, Ray Johnson told the Authority he would need a four-wheel drive pickup truck with a snow plow blade to augment snow removal equipment already on hand. The present airport truck, a two-wheel drive model, is worn out. The truck will be needed to do relatively light snow removal work on roads and parking lots, leaving the heavy equipment for runway work.

Also, on Johnson's suggestion, the Authority authorized the expenditure of $234.72 for door mats for use inside the terminal doors. Johnson also informed the Authority they would soon be forced to have radio control for snow removal equipment that works on the runways during scheduled airline periods. Minimum equipment would be two transmitters in the equipment cabs and a base station that would be set up in the FSS station in the main building. Cost would be roughly $2,000, Johnson said. "This is a very serious condition," he told the group. "You have gotten away with it for twenty years, but you could lose everything in one second if there is an airplane accident," he warned. The matter was turned over to the operations committee for investigation.

Johnson said the airport realized a gross profit of $2,137 from the passenger rides on Aviation Day when 438 persons were taken on brief flights on an Allegheny Airlines 580 Convair plane. He added that Leslie Barnes, president of the airlines, had said he would provide another airplane next year for a similar event. The plane was provided at no cost to the Authority and the funds are to be used solely for airport promotional activities.

Toward the close of the meeting, Russell Weston said it might be possible in the not too distant future to get some funds from Cattaraugus County, N.Y. for the Authority, since a fair percentage of airport business comes from Olean business concerns.

Bill Cramer noted again for the benefit of the businessmen and press from Elk County that the airport is truly a regional airport, and that its name did not imply purely Bradford or McKean County usage. He said the trend is nationwide toward regional airports for many reasons, principally financial with federal and state monies more readily available, and that a precedent had already been well established for crossing state borders in such regional arrangements. He cited New York, Connecticut and New Jersey as all being involved in the operation of J. F. Kennedy Airport in New York and the Kansas City, Kan. and Kansas City, Mo. communities operating a single airport.

Bradford Regional Airport, he informed them, serves a quarter of a million people in a 45-minute drive in the four counties and there is no reason why some parts of New York State could not be included in the area financing the field.

Richard Broxton a Warren County member, requested the formation of a Certification Committee to work on certification requirements for the airport that are now due by mid-summer, including fire protection among other vital services.

Next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, December 8, at the Bradford Holiday Inn.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. DeFrees Honored By State Senate

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. DeFrees of Warren have been accorded a second high honor by the Senate of Pennsylvania. A resolution, introduced by Senator Richard C. Frame, was unanimously adopted by the Senate Monday.

The resolution notes that the local couple were named recipients of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce Community Service Award, adding that "they have dedicated their lives to the enrichment and continued growth of their community and through the years have been willing and unselfish contributors to all projects designed to improve the lot of their fellowmen."

The Senate extended its heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. DeFrees on receiving the award and commended them for their outstanding service to the community.

Still Critical

Still listed in critical condition and still in the special surgical unit at Warren General Hospital is Andrea M. Whittemore, 20, of 1203 Pennsylvania ave. west, Warren, whose pickup truck was struck headon by another car Saturday on Rt. 27 near Pittsfield. Five persons in the other car died in the wreck that occurred at 1:05 p.m.

Enemy Attacks Airport, Communications Center

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy forces attacked the Phnom Penh airport and a nearby communications center in coordinated attacks early Wednesday, inflicting heavy casualties and damage.

U.S. B-52 bombers dumped tons of explosives on a rubber plantation near the beleaguered town of Rumlong while Cambodian troops battled to rescue some 400 men wounded defending the town 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The enemy mounted a steady mortar attack on the town and American bombers retaliated by pounding the plantation east of Rumlong where enemy ammunition is hidden.

A Cambodian army spokesman, Capt. Chang Song, said no accurate count of the casualties from the enemy attacks on the Phnom Penh airport and communications center was available. But unofficial reports said about 25 Cambodians were killed and 30 wounded.

Nine aircraft were reported damaged by a barrage of 50 rockets which slammed into the airfield and surrounding areas shortly after midnight.

They included three C47 transports, three light observation planes, and three of Cambodia's six helicopters. Two of the helicopters were badly torn up, spokesmen said.

The airport was severely damaged by a similar sapper attack last Jan. 22.

Escapes Injury

A Warren man escaped injury when the Jeep station wagon he was driving on Kiantone rd. was demolished at about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

State police said Richard A. Merry of 125 Dutch Hill rd., Warren, was traveling north on Kiantone rd. about two miles north of Rt. 62, when his vehicle left the road on the right side, struck the guard rail, crossed the road, rolled over, traveled back across the road and came to rest on its wheels.

16 Of 27 Municipalities Adopt Water, Sewer Plan

Only 16 of the 27 municipalities in Warren County have adopted the county's Water and Sewer Plan, according to Dennis Whipple, county planning officer.

The plan, which was compiled earlier this year by Neathery-Norton Planning Consultants, was issued to each municipality in mid-September so that all would have time to consider the comprehensive water and sewer proposal and adopt it by the November 15 deadline established by the state Department of Environmental Resources.

Many of the municipal officials met at the court house in September to ask questions about the plan.

Whipple said most of the 11 municipal agencies that have not yet acted were not at the September meeting. He said another meeting would be scheduled for the near future to answer any questions they might have.

He felt the Department of Environmental Resources would probably extend the deadline so that townships and boroughs with questions will have time to clear them up and still adopt the plan.

Most of the municipalities still out are small townships, Whipple said. The only major population area that has not yet adopted the plan is Youngsville Borough.

According to state law each municipal government in Pennsylvania must have an approved water and sewer plan. Warren County, following the lead of other counties in the area, drew up a general plan that each of its municipalities could adopt to fulfill the state requirement.

If a municipality refuses to accept the county plan it must finance its own to satisfy the state. The county plan cost close to $20,000 to complete and was paid for through a federal grant program.

Truck Driver Found At Fault In Accident

State Police verified Wednesday that the driver of a tractor-trailer was at fault October 29 when he crashed into a car driven by a Sheffield woman, sending three to the hospital. An earlier story in this newspaper carried details of the accident.

According to police information the truck driver, William Altman of Greensburg, was attempting to pass a west-bound line of cars illegally when he struck the car of Mrs. Lynn Doney of Sheffield, who was traveling east on Route 6 near Clarendon at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Doney and her two children were rushed to Warren General Hospital and later released. Damage to the Doney vehicle came to $2,300 and damage to the truck rig was estimated at $18,000.

Three Hospitals Plan Merger

Of Boards

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Officials of three major Allegheny County Hospitals said Wednesday they had completed plans to merge their boards of directors as the first step toward a consolidation of the three hospitals.

The new board would have equal representation from the participating hospitals — Pittsburgh, East Suburban and Columbia, a spokesman said.

He said the combined board would attempt to set up "a unified health care system for the greater eastern Allegheny County area."

Police Seek Identity

Of Body

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Suburban Robinson Twp. police Wednesday were attempting to determine the identity of a body found a day earlier in a wooded area just off U.S. 60.

The Allegheny County Coroner's office said Jeffery Cieslak, 19, found the victim Tuesday while riding a motorcycle in the area.

Authorities said the body was so badly decomposed sex could not be determined immediately.

Deputy Welfare Secretary Named

HARRISBURG (AP) — Dr. William B. Beach Jr., an official in California state government and Scranton, Pa., native, was named deputy secretary of Pennsylvania's Welfare Department Wednesday.

Dr. Beach will assume his duties Dec. 1 at a salary of $33,695 a year. The post has been vacant for some time.

Gov. Shapp, in making the announcement, said Beach will plan and establish policy for the Commonwealth's mental health and mental retardation programs as well as re-evaluate on-going programs.

Beach has been in California government for several years and in 1965 was appointed deputy director of that state's Department of Mental Hygiene.

Drug Test Results Still Awaited

Warren Borough Police Chief Bernard Winegardner said Wednesday that the crime lab in Erie has still not tested the drug items uncovered in a September raid on the house at 7 Second ave.

He said the "52 samples" of drugs or drug related materials sent to the lab on September 30 are still sitting on the shelf at the modern Troop E crime lab because drugs relating to court cases take priority over the local items.

Originally Winegardner expected the samples, which were taken from a rooming house owned by Mrs. Edie O'Hara on September 28, to be tested during the month of October.

"I expected some results two weeks ago," Winegardner said, "but apparently they've got quite a back log at the crime lab."

Inspectors Push Probe Of Burglary

CORRY—Four postal inspectors, state police of the Corry substation and Corry city police are still working on the weekend burglary of the Corry Post Office, first such case here in the history of the local facility.

No loss figure can be revealed now by postal officials, according to Inspector Nick Cook of the Pittsburgh Postal Service office. Postal policy, Cook said, is to withhold loss figures until there is a formal complaint filed or an indictment.

The theory behind this procedure is that such information gives would-be burglars a hint as to whether it might be worthwhile to rob any given post office.

Cook did say the burglars who hit the local post office gained access to the walk-in vault in which cash, stamps and money orders are stored.

Vandalism In Cemetery Investigated

Deputy Sheriff Doug Irvine is investigating an incident of vandalism which occurred on or about the night of Thursday, Nov. 4 at the Garland Presbyterian Cemetery in Garland.

Irvine said a person or persons unknown pushed and knocked over 15 large tombstones, breaking two and causing extensive damage.

It was pointed out that the cost to set the stones back up cost between $25 and $50 since special equipment is required. Irvine also noted that the Garland Cemetery Association must also notify the survivors regardless of where they are presently residing.

School Superintendent Howard Newson and Jack Dile, high school principal, advised the board Monday night that they had reviewed Sterling's previous school records and, based on their findings, recommended that he be permanently expelled from attending classes.

Because Sterling is a senior who needs only three additional credits to graduate, he will be given the opportunity to complete his education by attending night school. If he elects to do so, he will be required to attend classes a minimum of three nights a week for a total of 200 instruction hours.

Sterling's expulsion is the first such action by the school board in approximately eight years, according to the board president.

Forest County Twp. Audits Completed

The office of the Auditor General has completed its audit of the Liquid Fuels Tax Fund accounts for Green and Kingsley Townships in Forest County and found them to be in order.

Green Township had a balance as of Jan. 1, 1970 of $2,635.29 and was allocated $3,998.92, making a total of $6,634. Expenditures made from Jan. 1, 1970 to Dec. 31, 1970, included $1,089.19 in wages; $236.63 for materials and $1,608 for equipment rental. The township as of Dec. 31 showed a balance of $3,700.39.

Kingsley Township, with $8,179.46, spent $292.97 for wages; $1,591.50, materials; $1,170, equipment rental and $195.89, supplies. The Dec. 31, 1970 balance was listed at $4,929.10.

The percentage of liquid fuels tax funds allocated to the various municipalities is appropriated from the Motor License Fund to be expended on maintenance, repair, construction or reconstruction of roads, bridges, culverts and drainage structures.

Congress Labels Busing A Mistake

When Congress voted down the Emergency School Aid Act of 1971, a close 2 to 1 decision left little question as to the attitude of most members on the matter of busing to achieve racial balance in our schools. The vote, following closely on the release of a Gallup poll report indicating that 74 percent of the American citizenry objected to the practice, establishes a basis for thinking that perhaps the whole idea behind busing may have been a mistake.

Perhaps, as some congressmen have claimed, the program is one that substitutes a social experiment for orderly processes of education, to create one of the greatest social and educational crises of the times. And there can be little questioning the fact that the efficient operation of the affected schools has been hampered, with the officials of these schools having to alter their programs to accommodate the conditions brought on by busing.

There is evidence as well that students being bused to schools far distant from their home communities lack the concentration needed for best educational response.

But the big objection to busing stated by those who opposed the bill was that at a time when the nation is striving to erase all vestiges of racial consciousness, when all are to be treated as first class American citizens, busing has contributed more than anything else to emphasizing the difference between blacks and whites.

They feel that the imposition of artificial racial quotas is inconsistent with this trend. And they note that the required funding of the bill ($1.5 billion) placed an exorbitant cost on the practice, expending funds that could be used to better purpose in achieving an improved standard of education in all schools.

The general consensus of opinion among those who opposed the bill seemed to be that through forced busing the children lose, the schools lose, and the nation loses, while parents and school officials become frustrated.

School busing for racial purposes is not a local problem. Yet it is worthy of comment that our local representative, Congressman Albert W. Johnson, was among those opposing the passage of this bill, an action that will possibly lay the groundwork for further future efforts to eliminate a practice that can be dubbed "an American tragedy" in the minds of most of us.

Shapp's Test Lies Ahead

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Lawmakers returning to Capitol Hill this week following their election recess seemed to be generally agreed that the acid test of how well the Democratic Shapp Administration is being received by the populace as a whole will come in next year's legislative elections — not in last week's runoff as some of the more hopeful, including His Excellency, seemed to feel.

In fact when you come right down to it, what could be a more appropriate test area than next fall's legislative contests — inasmuch as the prime note of the Shapp Administration unquestionably has to be the state income tax and who laid the income tax on the books, at the behest of the Governor, other than Pennsylvania's legislative greats?

Of course, the ideal test would be a vote on the governorship itself — but this isn't in the cards for next year and won't be until 1974, and by that time Mr. Shapp may or may not be a candidate to succeed himself.

Thus the next best devolves upon the 1972 legislative contests for Pennsylvania's 203 seats in the House of Representatives and half the fifty seats in the Senate.

Much will depend too on how many of those Democratic lawmakers who provided the necessary votes to enact Mr. Shapp's income tax decide to stand for reelection.

Out of office Republicans already are looking toward next year with the income tax issue viewed as a made-to-order campaign plank — while Democrats of course in defense of the levy contend there was no other choice, plus the contention that the income tax forms the base (somehow) for the "tax reform." His Excellency has consistently talked about. It is doubtful the average taxpayer is as concerned about "tax reform" as he is about "tax reduction."

Thus under the circumstance, the issue should be fairly clear-cut next year when the question arises as to whether Democratic income tax-enacting lawmakers are to be returned to office — or relegated to the political pastures.

But by this time next year, more issues than the income tax will be on the agenda. Come the fall of 1972 Mr. Shapp will have been in office almost two years, or half his present term — and by that time a fairly good clue should be offered in the legislative voting as to just how the first two years of the Shapp reign are being accepted (or rejected) overall by the Keystone State's voting populace.

Up to this point in this first year of his tenure, the general feeling persists in Capitol Hill that the Shapp Administration has not "sold itself" to the general public in anything approaching a demonstrable fashion.

Uncertainty and political and administrative hedge-hopping seem to be the keystones of this first year for His Excellency climaxed by one series of bumbling rebuffs after another.

Of course the answer invariably offered is that after all, this is only the first year in office and mistakes are bound to be made. Few if any dispute this defense but what has raised eyebrows is the seemingly built-in a china shop stance assumed by his new Excellency, particularly in view of the fact that he had no previous experience in state government.

On the other hand, Mr. Shapp has been imbued with the ideal that as a former (highly successful) businessman, he is determined to bring a businesslike aspect to the operation of state government — which unquestionably has led him into one political pitfall after another which the business community does not countenance.

As His Excellency should soon discover: he's running an entirely different show now.

ART BUCHWALD

Which Way, World?

WASHINGTON — The best quote to come out of the Amchitka H-bomb test can be attributed to Maj. Gen. Edward B. Giller who has the title of "assistant general manager for military application" at the Atomic Energy Commission. After the test Gen. Giller told reporters, "I don't foresee another test, but I won't say we'll never come back. It depends on how the world goes."

Well, everyone knows how the world is going to go. The Russian military chiefs are going to say to the Kremlin, "See here, Comrade Rulers, the Americans have just exploded a five-megaton bomb 6,000 feet below surface of earth. Is important we explode six-megaton bomb 7,000 feet below surface of earth or they will think they are ahead of us in nuclear warfare."

"Is safe exploding six-megaton bomb below the earth?" the Kremlin asks.

"Who knows? But national security, it is involved, and safe is not what we should worry about. Is Spartan missile we must worry about."

"Spartan missile, Comrade Generals?" "Is missile used in ABM system to shoot down our missile. Americans say explosion was success. Is proof that we cannot get through their defense. Is giving United States such confidence they might attack us without warning. Soviets must explode six-megaton H-bomb to show Washington not ahead in missile race."

"Comrade Generals," the Kremlin asks, and Schmertz were in Belgrade together, she emphasizes it was all perfectly proper. Their relationship is based, both say, on mutual respect.

Footnote: Lengyel was praised for his work by such famed archaeologists as Princeton's Homer Thompson and Prof. Andre Varagnac, director of the International Institute of Archaeological Civilization in Paris. Yet a Smithsonian panel, through Denison University which was receiving the grant, kicked Lengyel off the project. The Yugoslav archaeologists protested to no avail.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Shifty Shuttling

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is asking questions about a multi-millionaire who shuttles mysteriously between the White House and the inner sanctums of the Greek dictatorship.

He is Tom Pappas, a Greek-American who runs the Esso works in Greece. Back in 1968, he helped wangle the vice presidential nomination for his fellow Greek-American, Spiro Agnew. Pappas offered to raise millions for the GOP cause from wealthy Greeks if Richard Nixon would take Agnew as his running mate.

Now Pappas has a key, apparently, to the back door of the White House where he was seen most recently at President Nixon's dinner for Yugoslavia's Josip Tito. Pappas also turned up in Greece last month with Vice President Agnew. Pappas was the man in dark glasses who was seen squeezing out of the U.S. helicopter just behind the Agnews. He gave a sumptuous dinner for the Vice President at a posh hotel in Greece.

Pappas has taken care not to neglect the Democrats in his political wheeling and dealing. The recent House battle to continue military aid to Greece, for example, was led by Rep. Roman Pucinski, D-Ill. We have uncovered a 1969 letter from Pucinski to Pappas, declaring: "I am grateful to you for your help."

Pucinski has assured us that the "help" was not financial. He was merely expressing his appreciation, said Pucinski, for Pappas's help in finding jobs for constituents who had returned to Greece.

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's chief of staff, Carl Marcy, has questioned the State Department about Pappas. Marcy asked specifically about press reports, quoting exiled Greek leader Elias Demetrapoulos, that Pappas and his brother John have used "their considerable political and economic clout in the United States to promote simultaneously their own financial interests as well as the interests of a ruthless military dictatorship."

The State Department replied last weekend that Pappas was neither an official of Greece nor the U.S., then added warily as befits a confidential report on a White House favorite: "While the articles in question imply by indirection that Mr. Pappas has acted improperly, there has never been to our knowledge any direct accusation that he has exceeded the bounds of propriety or legality."

Footnote: The Foreign Relations Committee's questions were inspired by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who hasn't made up his mind whether to go ahead with an investigation of Pappas's role in Greek-American relations.

—RUCKUS AT RUINS— A distinguished archaeologist was pulled off an ancient excavation after he refused to pay wages to the pretty, blonde assistant of his Smithsonian Institute boss.

The Ruckus at the Ruins has all the elements of a late, late pith helmet movie. The archaeologist is Dr. Alfonz Lengyel of Wayne State University, who in 1968 headed the Smithsonian-backed "dig" to unearth the secrets of Sirmium, a Roman imperial capital in Yugoslavia.

His Smithsonian boss, Kennedy Schmertz, expanded the budget by $600 to his own pretty assistant, Constance Rogers, could be Lengyel's "administrative consultant."

But Miss Rogers disappeared from the site from time to time. On one occasion, Lengyel asked her point blank where she had been. She replied, according to an affidavit he has just made: "It's none of your business. I'm on a confidential mission."

When she demanded her full pay, Lengyel withheld about half of it. Lengyel went on with his excavation, often working in the pits with his laborers. But Miss Rogers again disappeared — this time just as the junketeering Schmertz arrived in Yugoslavia. Schmertz now admits he had notified Miss Rogers he was on the way but neglected to inform Lengyel.

When Miss Rogers turned up again at the diggings, Lengyel asked her where she had been.

"Mr. Schmertz arrived in Belgrade and I work for him," she is quoted in the affidavit as replying. Both had registered at Belgrade's posh hotel Metropol. When Lengyel learned about this, he confronted her with the information.

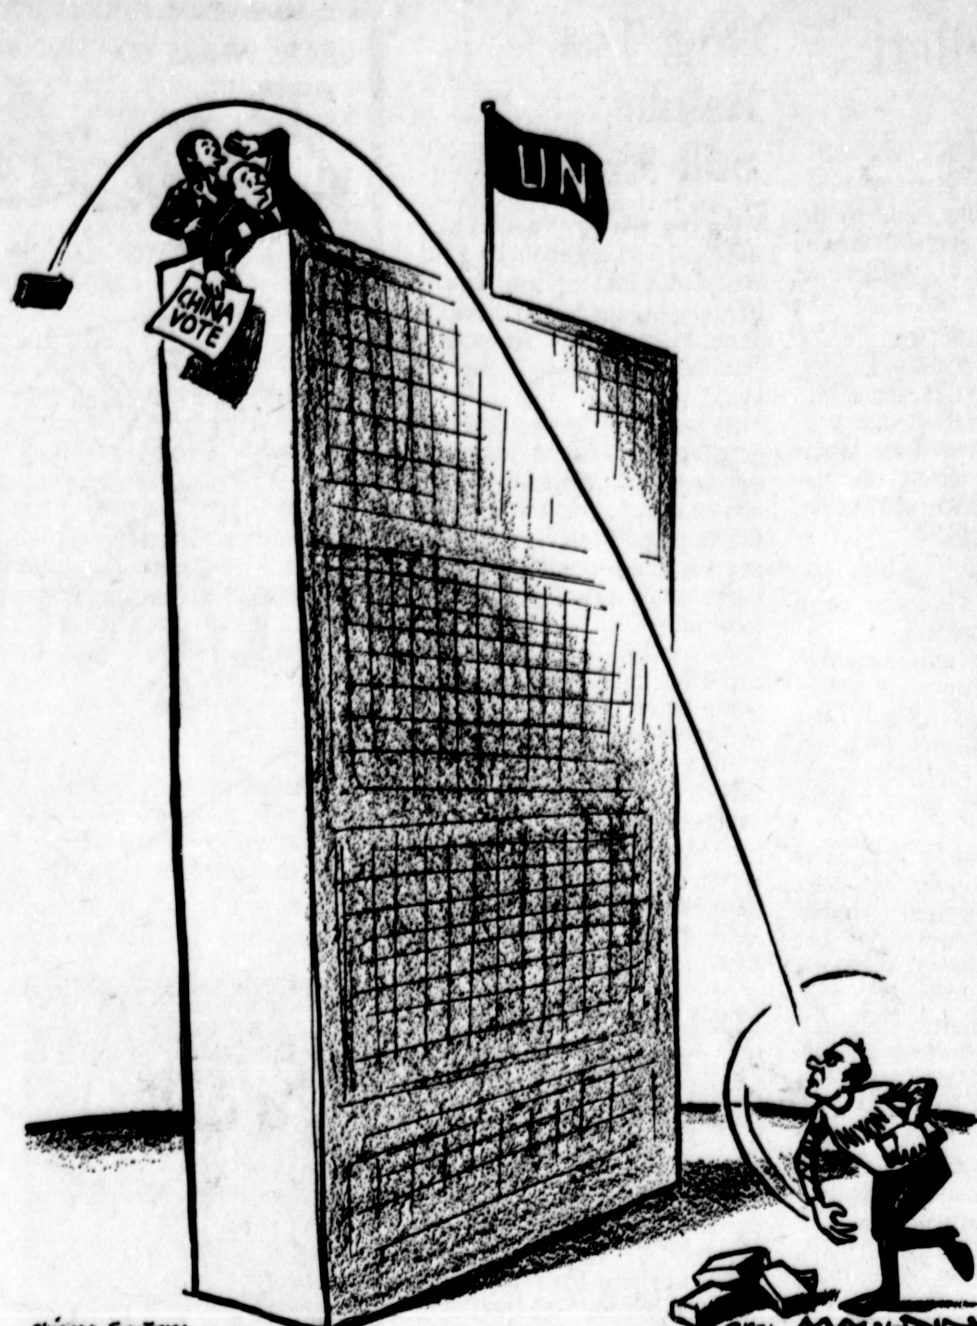

"A thousand other people were in the same hotel," she replied, according to Lengyel's sworn statement.

Why, persisted Lengyel, didn't his boss visit the important Sirmium site? Miss Rogers allegedly retorted disdainfully: "He's not interested in your excavation."

Schmertz not only failed to visit the Sirmium site but didn't even bother to telephone Lengyel for a report on the project. Yet Schmertz was supposed to be overseeing it for the Smithsonian.

He told us he had arranged with Miss Rogers to inspect other sites in Yugoslavia. This would explain her absences, he said. He concedes that she was supposed to be working for Lengyel and that he never informed Lengyel of the unusual arrangement.

While Miss Rogers acknowledges she

ON THE RIGHT

1964 And 1972

By William F. Buckley Jr.

An underground conservative social scientist sends me a document which has gone utterly unnoticed even though it is over a year old. It is the Western Political Quarterly, 1969, 22 (4). The study is by Edmond Constantini (Political Science, University of California at Davis), and Kenneth H. Craik (at the time, in the Department of Psychology at Berkeley). The provocative title of the article: "Competing Elites Within a Political Party: A Study of Republican Leadership." And the import of the findings goes beyond the adjudication of a hot historical argument dating back to 1964. The findings should be front page news for Richard Nixon.

In 1964, the approved understanding among enlightened gentry of what had happened to the Republican Party in San Francisco was that a hoard of primitives, whose god was Barry Goldwater, had as the result of successful conniving by some deft political operators like F. Clifton White, Stephen Shaddegg and others, simply taken control of the Republican Party. Here, for instance, is how Richard Rovere, premier spokesman on political matters for the eastern seaboard liberal establishment, put it in Encounter magazine for October, 1964. "The language of sedition is relevant... to what happened to the Republican Party over the last three or four years. It has been infiltrated, captured, and made, (as Richard Hofstadter says) a 'front organization' by an organized faction whose loyalty to Goldwater and Goldwaterism far transcends its loyalty to Republicanism."

Indeed, Professor Hofstadter, the influential political scientist from Columbia said it more extensively in the same issue of Encounter. "Goldwater's true believers promptly moved in to fill the structural and moral vacuum, while the moderate leaders rested on their oars, assuming that they would be able to move in, as they had always done, in the next campaign year. Goldwater men infiltrated the party much as the Communists in their days of strength infiltrated liberal organizations in order to use them as front groups. Working with highly disciplined cells or cadres, they rapidly took over county and town committees, developed their own local candidates, and prepared for battle at the national level."

Well, the two scholars in question went to work. They selected for interrogation a scientifically satisfactory cross sample of the delegates pledged to Rockefeller and the delegates pledged to Goldwater and, for good measure, the delegates pledged to Lyndon Johnson.

As regards their location on the ideological spectrum, there was an extraordinary consistency between self-evaluation, and objective valuation, based on exploring the views of these delegates on 14 separate issues. It transpired that the distance (moving right) between the Johnsonite and the Rockefellerite, was approximately the same as the distance between the Rockefellerite and the Goldwaterite. And — very interesting — that the Nixonite fell almost exactly in between Rockefeller and Goldwater.

Now on the matter of who were the Republicans. The Republican people fell like nine pins. The Goldwaterites had:

—Participated more in county and State Republican organizations over the years.

—They had contributed more money to the party, from smaller incomes — even though their money went, in many cases, to liberal Republicans (e.g. Nixon in 1960, Kuchel in 1962).

—They had attended more conventions (two to one in an official capacity prior to 1964).

—They had more years of active involvement in the Republican Party.

—On the record, they were more likely than the Rockefellerites to support the Republican nominee whoever he was. For instance, they had backed Eisenhower when Eisenhower beat Taft, in far greater number than the Rockefellerites backed Goldwater after Rockefeller lost.

And finally — but I would not risk a paraphrase, and so quote the authors' own version of it: "With respect to the 'why' of party involvement, the members of the Goldwater elite were more likely than the members of the Rockefeller elite to have entered politics as the result of public-serving motives (e.g., out of concern for public policy issues) and less likely to have entered politics as the result of personal-serving motives (e.g. to achieve certain social satisfactions or to enhance one's personal influence)."

The meaning for the historians is absolutely clear: the official version of what happened in 1964 is baloney. The current meaning for Mr. Nixon is: the backbone of the Republican Party is to his right. On the other hand, he can take comfort from the knowledge that they are slow to defect.

The Reader Speaks

Dear Sir:

This is to commend you on the impeccable common sense and logic contained in your brilliant editorial today titled "A Time to Revise Foreign Aid."

The disarming candor of this fine editorial is an excellent example of how a civic-minded newspaper such as yours can truly serve its proper role as both a mirror of its citizenry's thoughts and a leader in channeling those thoughts in a manner that will inspire its readers to encourage their legislators to act in the best interests of the majority.

IN THE NATION

By Tom Wicker

CLEVELAND — The spectacle of Sen. Edward Kennedy defending the reputation of William Rehnquist against allegations by Joseph Rauh of the American Bar Association suggests the painful dilemma in which liberals and civil libertarians have been placed by Rehnquist's nomination to the Supreme Court.

This nomination is not like that of Clement Haynsworth, whom President Nixon earlier tried to put on the court. Judge Haynsworth was not confirmed by the Senate on the ostensible grounds that his record on the bench showed a lack of perception of possible conflict of interest situations.

Nor is the Rehnquist case similar to that of Nixon's other rejected nominee, G. Harrold Carswell. Judge Carswell was found to have made misstatements to a Senate committee, and his confirmation hearings disclosed a glaring lack of qualification for the Supreme Court.

The Rehnquist matter is not even like that of Lewis Powell, whom Nixon has also named to the court.

Powell is a pillar of the southern establishment, a good credential in the Senate; he is 64 years old and his tenure on the court will be limited by that; he is not expected by most observers to become a powerful leader within the court.

Rehnquist is a horse of a very different color. At 47, he can look forward to a long and active tenure on the bench. Moreover, his record is that of a hard working and vigorous champion of conservative political causes, both in Arizona and within the Nixon administration. Persons in and out of the administration who know his work credit him with superior intellect and skill in the law.

Thus Rehnquist on the court is altogether likely to become a driving force for the principles he espouses. There are those who believe that as the years go along he will be a more formidable leader than Chief Justice Burger in the conservative wing of the court — a wing that may already be in the majority on some issues and will almost surely become dominant if Nixon wins another term in the White House.

It is no wonder, then, that liberals and libertarians are desperately casting about for means of defeating the Rehnquist nomination in the Senate. Rehnquist's record of opposition to civil rights measures, his strong advocacy of state powers that would threaten Bill of Rights guarantees — at least what many people passionately believe to be guarantees — his youth, and his obvious leadership qualities might alter the course of the Supreme Court for decades to come.

But the hard fact is that no one here has as yet produced any evidence of the kind of ethical tangles that ruined Judge Haynsworth's chances — and before that led to the resignation of Abe Fortas from the court; nor has anyone been able to identify misstatements like those that sank Judge Carswell, let alone a lack of legal or intellectual qualifications.

It was, in fact, on the matter of Rehnquist's integrity that Kennedy rebuked Rauh. The latter had suggested that the nominee had been less than candid denying ever having been a member of the John Birch Society. The senator could hardly be sympathetic to a man of Rehnquist's views, but he insisted that the nominee's basic integrity was unchallenged.

So the real question before the Senate is whether it can, or should, reject Rehnquist solely because of his political views. On the one hand, the writers of the Constitution, in giving the Senate the power to confirm or reject presidential nominees to the judiciary, clearly meant for the legislative branch to play a substantive role with the executive branch in this process. The Senate has the right, therefore, to judge for itself the qualifications of a man to sit on the Supreme Court.

On the other hand, to make that judgment solely on the basis of his political views (which, after all, may change) is dangerous business. It presumes some kind of rightful political orthodoxy, it would tend to politicize the courts according to the temporary political coloration of Congress; it could punish some individuals for their ideas, and frighten others out of having any.

Moreover, it is bound to lead to retaliation, as it did when Republicans and Conservatives defeated President Johnson's nomination of Justice Fortas to be chief justice, at least partially on political grounds. Paying off that score had a good deal to do with Judge Haynsworth's subsequent rejection.

It may be argued that Nixon should not have handed Senators this dilemma by appointing an activist political figure to a nonpolitical court; but the precedents are ample, and the Senate is likely to compound the damage if it denies Rehnquist his court seat solely because of his political views.

EISENHOWER AWARDS DINNER

Eisenhower Coach Tom Firth gives the third gold and blue football to Curt Carlson for his part in this season's 4-4 football wars. Looking on at the presentation of the outstanding back award are Ernie Carlson (middle), Harold Hodges and assistant coach Ron Dunbar. Carlson also accepted a football for being the team's captain, while Hodges earned his for being the best lineman on the squad. All three were singled out at last night's fall football dinner in the Eisenhower High cafeteria. (Photo by Dorrian)

Clarion Crowned Intramural Champs

In the intramural championship game Wednesday, the Clarion State team won the game easily, demolishing Thiel 20-0.

Clarion, the regular season champion, opened the scoring mid-way in the first half when Joe Wozneak intercepted a pass and ran it in for the score. Wozneak struck again just before the end of the half, this time with a pass of his own to Jim Anderson for another touchdown.

Using ball control, Clarion took up eight minutes in a drive for the last score of the game, a Wozneak to Jerry Morley pass to put the game out of reach, 20-0.

Thiel threatened only once late in the game but had to give the ball up on an unsuccessful fourth-and-inches play.

The win ends Clarion's season at 13-1-1, their only loss coming in the season opener.

In a vote of the players, Joe Wozneak received the Most Valuable Player award.

250 ATTEND BANQUET Ike Grid Stars Honored

The Eisenhower Sports Boosters paid homage to their Knight gridiron representatives at a three-hour dinner last night in the high school cafeteria before an estimated 250 combined parents, school officials, coaches, players and cheerleaders.

Boosters President Roger Thelin announced, after the supper, that the drive for the electric scoreboard was initiated at the last sports booster meeting, with the club forwarding a check in the amount of $100 for the purchase. The scoreboard per se will cost the school $1,700. Denny Engstrom, soon after Thelin announced the drive was open, came forth with two more checks from other sources to ante the fund toward $250.

In the awards' session, coaches Tom Firth and Ron Dunbar presented football letters and small mementos from the recently completed season; Firth made it a special point to inform the audience that eight men will be returning next year.

Three special awards were given out to complete the night's two-hour program. Presented with a football for being Eisenhower's outstanding back was Curt Carlson, a senior. Carlson, who played at tailback and quarterback despite perpetual injuries, was the team's second leading ground-gainer. Harold Hodges was cited and awarded another of the gold and blue pigskins for his outstanding contributions on the line. Selected as captain by his mates, Ernie Carlson was given the third football.

The 75-year-old Wrigley, although complaining that "I wish all the sports writers would stop trying to pick out my personnel," admitted he has not resolved Durocher's future with the Cubs.

Cubs' Pilot Job Not For Banks

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, skirting commitment on Leo Durocher's status for 1972, said Wednesday "I'm too fond of Ernie Banks to make him manager of anything."

Wrigley's comment followed a printed report speculating that Banks, a star Cub player since 1953, would be named managerial successor to the controversial Durocher.

The 75-year-old Wrigley, although complaining that "I wish all the sports writers would stop trying to pick out my personnel," admitted he has not resolved Durocher's future with the Cubs.

However, he was explicit in squashing the persistent rumor that the 40-year-old Banks will take over the Cub helm as the first black manager in the major leagues.

"Managing is a dirty job, it doesn't last long and it certainly isn't anything I would wish on Banks who is headed for baseball's Hall of Fame. Furthermore, I think Banks wouldn't take a managerial job."

Durocher's status has been in doubt despite an advertisement in Chicago newspapers Sept. 3 in which Wrigley gave his 65-year-old pilot a vote of confidence for remainder of the 1971 season.

However, the ad directed against the "dumb Durocher clique," made no mention of Leo returning for 1972.

Durocher took over in 1966 and hoisted the Cubs from last place to two second place and three third place finishes.

Wrigley told The Associated Press Wednesday "I'm not going to be able to figure out next season's managerial picture until I get a real chance to talk to John Holland (vice president) and Durocher."

"I talked on the phone the other day to Durocher who is in Arizona and told him I wanted to have a meeting with him when he returns to Chicago which he said would be in a week or 10 days."

Asked whether this meant a decision on Durocher's future, Wrigley said: "I don't know how I will talk to Leo."

Clemente Named To Sporting News NL Fielding Team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Right fielder Roberto Clemente of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates won a position for the 11th consecutive season Wednesday on the Sporting News' National League All-Star fielding team.

Clemente, 37, captured all but two of a possible 55 votes in the weekly newspaper's poll of NL managers and coaches.

Others named to the team were: outfielders Willie Mays and Bobby Bonds of San Francisco, first baseman Wes Parker and outfielder Willie Davis of Los Angeles, catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Tommy Helms of Cincinnati, shortstop Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets, pitcher Bob Gibson of St. Louis and third baseman Doug Rader of Houston.

Knights' Up And Down Season Concludes With Record At 4-4

By TOM SCHULTZ

The Eisenhower Knights, after sweeping to victories in their first two games, fell into a pattern they were to follow the remainder of the season—lose two, win one, lose two, win one.

Ike's head coach, Tom Firth, had set two objectives before the season opened, and both were accomplished. The Knights had never beaten Pine Valley and had fell prey to the Cougars of Cassadaga Valley for eight consecutive years. This year, however, Ike reversed both streaks, winning a 7-6 squeaker against Pine Valley and closing the campaign with a convincing 28-6 thumping of Cassadaga Valley.

In reviewing the Eisenhower season, the play of senior Curt Carlson stands out as the biggest plus factor. Carlson played over injuries which Firth said would have put lesser players on the bench. But Carlson continued to perform, operating at both the tailback and quarterback positions.

Firth moved Carlson in to call signals at the mid-way point, with Ike's record at 2-2. Carlson proceeded to direct the Knights to a 19-0 shutout against Brocton in his first effort as quarterback, passing for one touchdown and running for another.

He also handled all kicking duties—showing power to drive the ball inside the ten yard line on kick-offs, field goal accuracy and strong punting, one going for 53 yards against Westfield.

But, because of all the yardage and points runners such as Silver Creek's Sam Allen, Westfield's Jim Scarpine and Maple Grove's Kim Wefing, accounted for, as Firth pointed out, Carlson's all-around ability will probably be over-looked for all-league selection.

The moving of Mike Luvison out of the quarterback slot in favor of Carlson paid dividends at both ends. Luvison, although not exceedingly fast, showed powerful running from the tailback position, and consistently picked up valuable yardage. After the switch, Luvison responded with four of his season's five touchdowns and a PAT run to lead the Knights with 32 points.

As a team, Ike pushed across 91 points on 13 touchdowns and 11 extra points. Closely following Luvison for the scoring title was Carlson with 29 markers, coming on four TDs and four points-after attempts. The count drops off quickly then, with Greg Manelick at eight and Bob Thelin, Dave VanOrd and Randy Brown with six apiece.

Another big plus was the play of senior Greg Manelick. Last year the coaching staff couldn't get him to play offensive, and didn't push the point because of ample runners. This season, however, Manelick was Firth's utility man, performing at fullback, tailback and end. His forte is defense, and played aggressively from his linebacker post.

Manelick was rated on top of two team categories, and was among the top three in another. He led the Knights in tackles while playing defensive, paced the offensive receivers and, along with Carlson and Luvison, picked up the most yardage from his running back position.

Another graduating member of the backfield is VanOrd, who ran from the win-back position and was used mainly as a blocker and decoy.

Players along the lines, both offense and defense, rarely get recognition, they just do their job so the backfield personnel can get the headlines. Firth singled out center Paul Brown, calling him "the best center in the league."

Harold Hodges was voted the outstanding lineman in Ike's first three games and is blessed with good lateral movement, and on defense, is always at the right spot at the right time, even in practice, according to Firth. Roger Luvison, a two year letterman at tackle, was responsible for the Knights 7-6 win over Pine Valley early in the year when he pulled down the runner on the extra-point attempt.

All the previously mentioned players, except Thelin and Brown, are seniors and will be lost to Firth next year. Other spots to fill will be Pat Sweeney, guard; Ernie Carlson, end; and Gordon Frank, defensive tackle. Additional seniors are Tom Fleming, Mike English and David Drum.

Eisenhower started the campaign with a deficit—only 23 players dressed for the opening game. Firth realized then that in order to have a successful season everyone would have to remain healthy. Such was not to be the case. Thelin, who has had started last year as a sophomore, had a persistent ankle injury all season and did not even dress for the final game—just when the ankle was responding well, he twisted the other one.

Firth felt the Knights should have won the Randolph game, which they dropped 16-0, saying Ike had better personnel. But while Ike stayed with its starting units throughout the game, in 70 degree weather, the Randolph coach kept shuffling players in and out, keeping his squad fresh and ready to go. Eventually the heat wore down the Knights and Randolph pushed across ten points in the fourth quarter to win.

Who will be calling signals next year for the Knights? It should be interesting to see if Luvison is moved back in to do the job. More than likely he will as Firth has Thelin coming back, plus several good runners up from the JV squad which lost only one game—Tom Mazzu and Sam Kellogg.

But all anyone can do now, including Firth and his staff, is think about it, and wait.

Prohibits Taping, Newsmen Walk Out

SANJUAN, P.R. (AP) — Five newsmen walked out of a luncheon honoring Pittsburgh Pirate star Roberto Clemente Tuesday when he refused to allow one of them to tape some of his remarks.

Clemente told the reporter in front of witnesses that "in the United States, I punched a reporter that tried to tape my remarks without permission."

Last Home Game For Nittany Lions

Penn State's football team, the top scoring machine in the country, entertains North Carolina State Saturday.

A capacity crowd of 50,000, Penn State's fifth straight sellout this season, is expected at Beaver Stadium for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

It will be the final home game of the season for the Nittany Lions, who have an 8-0 record so far this year and a 13-game winning streak. North Carolina State is 2-7 after its upset 13-7 win over Miami (Fla.) last week.

Penn State moved to the top of the national scoring leaders after its 63-27 rout of Maryland last week. The Nittany Lions are averaging 44.1 points per game to 43.6 for Oklahoma and 42.1 for Michigan.

"We were pleased with the offense," head Coach Joe Paterno says, "and we were particularly pleased that Lydell Mitchell broke all of the rushing and scoring records. Some of his runs were just unbelievable. He has been just tremendous and has to be a top candidate for the Heisman Trophy. I don't see how there can be a better all-around back in the country."

Mitchell, the Lions' 200-pound senior halfback, broke six school records in just over three quarters of play against Maryland. He now holds the Penn State marks for rushing yardage in a season (1,174) and career (2,541), scoring in a season (126) and career (198) and touchdowns in a season (21) and career (33).

The Salem, N.J., native gained 209 yards and scored five touchdowns in only 24 carries against the Terps. He is averaging 6.6 yards per carry this season with his 1,174 yards in 179 attempts. He also is second on the team in receiving with 10 catches for 119 yards.

The nation's individual scoring leader, Mitchell needs only four touchdowns in the Lions' three remaining games to break the NCAA record of 24 TDs set by Art Luppino of Arizona in 1964.

"The offensive line has been great and we have so many other good backs that the defense can't gang up on me," Mitchell says.

Mitchell's point is a good one. Quarterback John Hufnagel is having an outstanding season. The Lion junior has completed 62.5 per cent of his passes (55 of 88) for 778 yards and six touchdowns. He has been intercepted only twice.

Fullback Franco Harris, who is fourth on Penn State's all-time rushing list, missed last week's game with a minor leg injury and has been bothered by a succession of minor injuries all season. He still has managed to gain 462 yards in 89 carries.

In addition to his passing prowess, Hufnagel gives Penn State another running threat. He has carried the ball 54 times for 302 yards and three touchdowns.

Sophomore Tom Donchez filled in for Harris last week and gained 80 yards in nine carries. Donchez had been running in the same backfield with Mitchell and Harris when the Lions are in their Power-I formation.

The Lion running backs have been running behind an offensive line led by tackle Dave Joyner, the team's offensive captain and another All-American candidate. Penn State is averaging 470.1 yards per game total offense, including 317.5 yards per contest on the ground.

The defense, led by linebackers John Skorupan and Charlie Zapiec and defensive end Bruce Bannon, has allowed just under 10 points per game.

The 27 points scored by Maryland were the most given up by the Lions this season.

North Carolina State has been hampered by a rash of injuries to key players this year, but came up with its best game of the season to beat Miami last week.

The Wolfpack is led by a pair of sophomores—quarterback Bruce Shaw and halfback Willie Burden. Shaw has passed effectively in the last several games. Burden is the team rushing leader with 739 yards and is a threat as a receiver.

IKE MATMEN

A takedown! Dave VanOrd lifts Sam Kellogg high on his shoulder in an effort to take him down for two points. Both are senior lettermen from last year's 12-2 team. Head coach Tony Ross has ten returning senior lettermen.

NFL LINEBACKER HONORED

Patriot's Kiner 'Different'

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Steve Kiner is a linebacker that his coach calls "a different type from most."

"He's not as big as most NFL linebackers," said John Mazur, coach of the New England Patriots, "but he makes up for it with his quickness and desire. He loves to play football."

Kiner, who weighs 212 pounds, showed Sunday that size is not the only criterion in judging a linebacker. With the Patriots trailing Houston with five minutes to play, he intercepted a pass that led to the go-ahead touchdown, then forced a fumble leading to an insurance score in New England's 28-20 victory.

For his efforts, Kiner was named Wednesday as The Associated Press Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

"He's the guy who turned it around for us," said Mazur. "He's played that way since he came here."

Kiner, a second-year pro who was traded to the Patriots from Dallas this year for a fourth-round draft choice, does not think his relative lack of size affects his play.

"I don't think my size bothers me at all out there," he said. "My speed compensates for it. I don't think size is that important. It's just a gross exaggeration that football tries to project to the public."

Kiner was named over Bill Bradley, a safety for the Philadelphia Eagles whose heroics helped his team earn a surprising 7-7 tie with the Washington Redskins. Bradley intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble in the second half. He returned one fumble 18 yards and his second interception, with 50 seconds to play, helped get the Eagles in position for a field goal that the Eagles were unable to get off before time ran out.

Triple Option Play Coming To Pros?

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Coach Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs predicted recently that the wish-bone triple option will be adopted by professional teams.

"An option play such as you have in the wishbone or in that category will become an integral part of a pro football team's offense in future years," Stram said. "It will not be used as exclusively as it is in college."

"You couldn't go directly to the option and not use anything else in your offense. The option attack by itself could not survive in pro football. But segments of an option offense will be used in the future."

"It will give the pro offense a new dimension. It's the kind of dimension we need to put more pressure on defenses."

Texas and Oklahoma have both used the wishbone to a high degree of success. Oklahoma is now ranked No. 2 in the nation.

"It depends on the type of quarterback you have," Stram said. "Look at the new breed of quarterbacks coming into pro football today. Most are big and strong and have run some type of option play in college."

"I don't think a quarterback is going to get hurt any more running the option than dropping back to pass. When he's running, he can protect himself better than when his protection is spread out when he's back to pass."

"With the new breed of quarterbacks coming up, I assure you it'll be a part of pro football."

Murtaugh Undecided About Managing Bucs Next Year

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, said Wednesday that he'll make up his mind about his future in about 10 days.

Asked if he decided not to manage, would he retire from baseball, Murtaugh said:

"No, absolutely not. I'll stay in this game. I'm sure the Pirates can find some place for me in the front office."

The 54-year-old skipper, considering retiring because of a heart condition, has managed the Pirates 11 seasons and twice his teams won the World Series, in 1960 and against the Baltimore Orioles this year.

— LOSING SEASON FOR JVs —

Junior Dragons Building For Varsity

By RANDY SCALISE
A 2-3-1 record doesn't sound very promising, does it? Especially for fans looking for the section win next year. But wait, there's a lot behind the scenes that is very promising for next year's varsity.

The JV's were 0-3-1 when Jeff Mead, second string varsity quarterback took over the signal calling and they proceeded to win their last two games, 22-0 and 22-8, the last victory coming over the previously undefeated Oil City JVs to revenge, a defeat at the hands of the varsity earlier in the year.

Coaches Bob Hovan and Jim Wilkens viewed it this way, "We had Tim Zdarko and Bret Hagberg at the quarterback position and both are very inexperienced, when we got Mead, we got both experience and a leader at that position." However, don't forget, either Zdarko or Hagberg in the years ahead for the number one quarterback. Both boys need to increase their size and strength for next year, if they do they both have the talent to play quarterback," said Wilkens.

Playing a position such as quarterback is hard enough, but on a JV squad the main idea is to play as many of the boys as possible, which however, messes up the timing in the backfield and results in broken plays and fumbles. The young team showed the ability to move the team but fumbles hurt them all year long.

The first game of the year was with Corry and neither team could generate an offense and it ended in a 0-0 tie. In a rematch the JV Beavers were outplayed easily, but three fumbles inside the five yard line spoiled many an opportunity as the Warren team lost 8-0.

Titusville journeyed into Warren and scored 22 points in the first quarter, mainly on passes and end sweeps. The only bright spot for the coaches was the solid line play from tackle to tackle.

Elk County was undefeated when they went up against the Warren team, and they stayed that way with an 18-0 shutout. Again the opposition was outplayed, but fumbles and failure to hit open receivers cost Warren the game.

Youngsville and Oil City were the last two games and with Mead quarterbacking, they won both. Youngsville's was a "controlled scrimmage," something designed to get a lot of the players in the game and to have the offense and the defense playing the same amount of time. Controlled scrimmages are big helps to

Giants' Johnson Sidelined Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Running back Ron Johnson, who missed the New York Giants' first six games of the National Football League season because of injuries, might be sidelined again Sunday against the Atlanta Falcons.

Johnson, the first Giants player to rush for more than 1,000 yards in one year suffered a strained ligament in Sunday's 35-17 victory over the San Diego Chargers. He is listed as doubtful for the Falcons' contest in Atlanta.

Schedule Change In 'Y' Basketball

A correction in the schedule for Thursday, for the YMCA Industrial Basketball League pits Team 2 versus Team 4 at 7 p.m. and Team 3 versus Team 6 at 8 p.m. Each team captain is asked to notify his players.

coaches and should be scheduled for earlier in the year, according to Hovan.

Wilkins is in his third year with the JV team and coaches the backfield. What kind of talent will find its way into the varsity next year? Wilkins put it this way, "Nobody on the JV team is assured of a spot on the varsity next year, however there are some very promising players on the roster."

Who should Warren fans be watching next year? First, halfback Dave Bowles, the leading rusher. Keith White, whose name brings a smile to Wilkins' face. "He has a very good attitude, works hard and likes to hit," the coach said. Gary Sodek who, has probably the best natural talent, according to Wilkins.

Linemen are Bob Hovan's bread and butter. He lists his receivers at the tight-end slot as Dave Mervin, Mark Singer, Tom Wolfe and Peter Gorfida. Mervin held down the number one position and played an outstanding game at Oil City with four receptions and a touchdown.

At split end are Jeff Passaro, Scott O'Neil and Jack Martin. Passaro was the team's leading receiver with eight catches.

Linebackers are one of Warren's best positions as they have had an abundance of them and this year is no difference. Dino Sanders, a quick, hard hitting linebacker, is compared to Leo English of two years ago.

The team as a whole will have to become much larger and stronger as the section Warren is in seems to have very big linemen each year.

Acklin's Assembly Amazing

It may have been a first last night for Janice Acklin when she turned effort into pins and came up with a rollicking 613 yesterday in the Early Birds League at the Riverside.

Everything she did seemed to be right. Starting her three-game set with a 228, she sandwiched in a 166 between that and a 219 in her final line for a 613.

Joyce Olson almost was a repeat performer for the cherished 600 club. Joyce rolled a booming 222 for a 591. Poor Mike Davis and his 255-664 and Dan Doherty's 246-659 took a backseat to the female duo.

Lundberg, Allen Berg Cop Titles

Scandia Cycle Club's first scramble race was held Sunday, and despite the snowfall, dipping temperatures, slick surfaces and ice-cold creek over 40 drivers took part in the two-hour long endurance race.

Former Warren resident Mike Lundberg completed the most laps—20—on his 380 CZ in winning the open championship. Chris Berg, Jamestown, rode a Breeves 19 laps in winning the 250 division. Warren's Roger Allen was adhered to his Carabela for 19 laps of the 125 run for the right to the title.

Auburn-Georgia Collision Highlights College Scene

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — A battle between two of Dixie's unbeaten powerhouses and an Ivy League classic have the college football divining rods quivering like guitar strings this weekend.

History should repeat itself at Hanover, N.H., where Dartmouth blunts the Big Red's Ed Marinaro, recalling the notorious fifth down in 1940 when Dartmouth broke a 14-game Cornell streak. History only has to go back 12 months at Columbus, Ga., where Georgia is chosen over Auburn.

Last week: 47-15, 758. Season: 381-147, 720.

Georgia 30, Auburn 23: The No. 7 team rises up to smite the No. 6 team, mainly on the defense that halts Pat Sullivan.

Dartmouth 15, Cornell 10: Defense is even tighter in this Ivy exciter. Paint Marinaro green.

Arkansas 35, Southern Methodist 17: The regional TV audience should enjoy the quarterback duel between Joe Ferguson and Gary Hammond.

Oklahoma 37, Kansas 7: Jack Mildren, Greg Pruitt and Joe Wylie run like a pack of wild horses.

Army 21, Pittsburgh 7: Two teams whose greatest glories are in the past are on the rebound—army bounces higher at home.

Nebraska 43, Kansas State 17: Cornhusker fans continue to flood us with letters saying Nebraska is great. We know it.

Texas 30, Texas Christian 14: Inspiration is on the side of TCU but size, depth and speed lie with the Longhorns.

Southern California 27, Washington 20: The Huskies and Sonny Sikkler have been spasmic; the Trojans are steady.

Oregon 23, California 10: The Golden Bears remain disorganized from NCAA discipline.

Syracuse 27, Navy 10: The upstate New Yorkers bounce out of a two-week slump; Navy improving.

Duke 17, Wake Forest 7: The Blue Devils don't stun you with a dazzling offense but they're greedy about their goal line.

Michigan State 32, Minnesota 12: Eric Allen has given the Spartans a new burst of power and confidence.

The others:

Ceiling On Campaign Spending

By Sylvia Porter

When a group of 60 millionaires met behind closed doors at an unprecedented luncheon in New York City's 21 Club a fortnight ago, they agreed that it is imperative to seek limits on spending for political campaigns.

Since the potential political contributions of these 60 millionaires alone will represent perhaps an astounding one-fourth of the funds necessary for the '72 Presidential campaigns, this single agreement at this extraordinary luncheon telegraphs the probability that for the first time in history, truly significant controls on political campaign spending are on the way.

Already—a full year before the 1972 elections—money to finance the '72 political campaigns from coast to coast has become a bitter issue and brutal headache. Not ever has the financing issue loomed so large so early in our election history.

Already, the phenomenal costs that will be involved have impelled Congress to debate major controls—including meaningful ceilings on the amounts candidates may spend plus strict enforcement measures and rules requiring disclosure of who contributes how much to each candidate's campaigns.

And already, the wide bipartisan support for action—both inside Congress and outside Congress, as illustrated by the attitudes of the 60 millionaires—makes it probable that a campaign financing law will be on the books before the '72 fights move into high gear.

The background is exceedingly sobering:

+ The total cost of the 1968 campaigns at all levels hit a record $300 million, up a staggering 50 per cent from 1964 and nearly double the $155 million spent as recently as 1956.

+ In 1968 the two main Presidential candidates spent more than $35 million, 40 per cent more than in 1964. Today, the cost of waging a single Presidential candidate's campaign is estimated at $25 million.

+ In 1968, the two major political conventions cost more than $2.5 million, $796,263 for the Republicans and $1,746,301 for the Democrats. These totals were merely to pay for the two short extravaganzas at which Humphrey and Nixon were nominated.

+ Today, it may cost tens of thousands, if not hundreds of thousands, to run for even a minor national office.

+ Candidates at all levels are being forced to make ever expanding use of such expensive new techniques as computer data banks, professional pollsters, speechwriters and political consultants who may charge $500 or more a day for their services. Meanwhile, the cost of TV continues to soar: in the '70 elections, the cost of TV political advertising rose nearly 50 per cent above '68 costs.

As a result, it is becoming ever more difficult for an unknown, or an American of limited means, to enter a political race. As a result, campaign fund raising has become a year-round burden for political contenders of all stripes (I've received dozens of solicitations even at this early date for financial support from a variety of hopefuls, and probably so have you). As a result, candidates of both parties are increasingly forced to lean on expensive mail blitzes and a relatively small handful of big contributors—leaving the little guy with a growing cynicism about the whole American political process and an equally mounting feeling of helplessness to make any changes.

There is no disputing the pressure for workable ceilings on campaign spending, nor doubting the need for controls on contributions. The details of the final bill Congress will vote are still to be written, but surely among the essential provisions will be:

Full disclosure by all candidates and political parties of the amounts of contributions and expenses, both before and after the elections.

Reasonable ceilings on total campaign spending on behalf of candidates, national and local, with a requirement that all spending be directly authorized by the candidates. The most popular total for such spending in the bills now before Congress is 10 cents per eligible voter for any given candidate.

A ceiling on the amounts any given individual may contribute to any given candidate.

Effective enforcement of the rules by an independent bipartisan elections commission with real power to halt abuses.

A Meadville doctor tells this one on himself. He was called to render emergency treatment to a woman who had suffered a severe head laceration in an auto accident. Seeking first to stop the flow of blood, the doctor began cutting her hair in order to get to the wound. Suddenly the accident victim moaned, "Oh, my beautiful wig!"

The City of Titusville was added Tuesday to the state's 25th Senatorial District represented by Sen. Richard C. Frame. The removal of Titusville from the 50th Senatorial District, was approved by the five-member Legislative Reapportionment Committee in Harrisburg. Sen. R. Budd Dwyer of Meadville represents the 50th senatorial district.

Local Health Fair Scheduled

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Warren County Medical Society met with officials of the Health, Education and Welfare Department and representatives of several community service groups Wednesday at the Warren General Hospital to begin preparing for a local "Health Fair"—tentatively slated for September 15 and 16 of 1972.

A preventive medicine and educational project, the Health Fair will depict the health and welfare resources of Warren County. The fair is planned as a two-day exposition drawn up by the sundry health service institutions in the community.

The fair will be designed as a family-outing type program where people of differing ages and interests can gain knowledge beneficial to them.

For instance, elderly persons can learn how to cope with broken hips, dietetic menus will be available for those who need them, children will be allowed to touch and understand the hospital machinery and families can discuss mutual problems with trained personnel.

Persons interested in participating in the "Health Fair" should contact Mrs. John Harrington, Mrs. John Robertson, Mrs. Raymond Lowe or Mrs. Dan Lareau.

PLANNING SPECIAL EVENT

Among those planning a Warren area "Health Fair" Wednesday were, left to right, Mrs. Robert Sokolski, Mrs. Arthur O'Connor and Howard Lauffenburger.

Cloak Of Secrecy On CIA Spending May Be Raised

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A western Pennsylvania man has gone to court to force the disclosure of spending by America's chief spy network, the Central Intelligence Agency.

William B. Richardson, 52, of Greensburg, about 30 miles east of Pittsburgh, filed suit in U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals after vainly trying to get information about the CIA through regular channels.

Richardson is asking that a three-judge federal court be convened to hear his case. This plea was rejected by a district court judge in Erie last year. The judge said the issues raised were political in nature and hence not capable of being decided by a court.

Richardson contends that the government's failure to disclose CIA spending violates the constitutional requirement for all regular accounting of all government receipts and expenditures.

CIA spending is concealed in other departments. The government has never said how much money the agency gets or how the money is spent. The agency is thought to employ about 15,000 civilians and to spend about $500 million a year.

Richardson, a graduate of the University of Tennessee law school, is an investigator for the Westmoreland County Public Defenders' office.

He said the court case has already cost him close to $2,000.

He is not a lawyer and has no lawyer representing him, but the court appointed Ralph S. Spritzer, a University of Pennsylvania law professor to file a brief as friend of the court.

In his brief filed last month,

Spritzer joined Richardson in asking the circuit court judges to direct the district court to convene the court of three judges. The circuit court has heard oral argument in the case. Its decision is expected before the end of the year.

Although individual congressmen have sought to force disclosure of CIA spending, Richardson's case is believed to be the first challenge in the courts of Washington's policy of secrecy.

In May 1967 Richard 5 of in Government Printing Office

In May 1967 Richardson wrote the Government Printing Office asking for documents published in compliance with the constitutional requirement that "a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time."

The reports subsequently received carried no listing for the CIA.

After several exchanges of letters in which he was told the Treasury Department had "no other information available with respect to the agency mentioned in your letter," S.S. Sokol, commissioner of accounts for the secretary of the treasury, wrote and said that the CIA expenditures were exempted by the CIA Act of 1949.

Richardson then filed suit on grounds that the government's reports were "fraudulent." He asked that Sokol and Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy be enjoined from publishing the annual statement of receipts, expenditures and balances of the U.S. Government until it complies with the constitutional mandate.

In its brief to the court of appeals, the government noted that Congress had limited disclosure of CIA financing "in the interests of national security, national defense and foreign policy." It said Richardson's quarrel was with Congress.

THANK YOU

Happy and gratified to know there are people who live for change, and I also salute the many others who exercised their first class citizenship Right to choose the government they wish to live under.

I know things can be made so much better in our communities for all people and I will continue to work for them so long as The Good Lord allows me to.

I hope to be back to ask your favor.

Double-The-Pension Bill Declared Dead By Gov. Shapp

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shapp said Wednesday a bill that would more than double legislators' pensions was dead, while senators criticized their chamber's handling of the legislation.

The governor and lawmakers reacted to the measure that passed the Senate Wednesday 35-13, then stalled in the House. "As far as the present bill is concerned, I think that's dead," Shapp told newsmen.

The governor said any pension increase should come from the new Compensation Commission created by the legislature last June. The commission is designed to set compensation — including retirement — for state legislators, administrators and judges.

The panel has remained inoperable because Gov. Shapp and legislative leaders have not appointed its members.

Shapp, however, did not rule out his signing a pension bill that he thought was reasonable.

While House members went home Tuesday, the Senate held its scheduled session.

The most critical remark came from Sen. Robert Rovner,

R-Philadelphia, who voted against the bill.

"It was wrong the way they tried to ram it through," he commented.

Other senators agreed the bill was railroaded past their chamber. The pension language was attached to a non-controversial bill, and nobody noticed it until the House began a series of unexplained long caucuses Tuesday.

Only 91 of the needed 102 House members reportedly were prepared to vote for it.

The proposal would eliminate the $12,000 annual ceiling on pensions. It would raise the benefit and contribution formulas by adding the $8,400 expense allowance to the $7,200 salary in the computations.

Roughly, the plan would raise a legislators' contribution from $1,350-a-year to $2,925. The state's matching contribution would be about $110,000.

Sen. John Stauffer, R-Chester, said he would not have voted for the bill if he knew what was included. He said the caucus discussion was inadequate.

"I raised the question: What does it do?" Stauffer said. "And I was told that it merely brought into the figures the $3,600 in increased expenses that we got earlier (in June)."

Sen. W. Louis Coppersmith, D-Cambria, who voted "no," said there was poor attendance at the Democratic caucus when the bill was discussed.

"It didn't get the attention it deserved," he added.

Caucuses, closed door party sessions, are where the nuts and bolts of legislation are normally discussed. There was no floor discussion when the pension bill came to a vote.

Senate Majority Leader Thomas F. Lamb, D-Allegheny, declined comment on the bill which he had voted for. But he expressed surprise when newsmen told him his pension would be about $28,000.

Faulty Brakes Blamed For 2-Car Mishap

Faulty brakes were blamed for a two car accident on Pennsylvania ave. west Tuesday night that resulted in more than $1,000 damage to the vehicles involved.

Investigating officer Greg Munksgard of the Warren Borough Police Department reported that Frank G. Reese, 26, of 19 N. South st. had stopped his car in a line of left-turning traffic approximately 140 feet west of Walnut st. when he was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by P.E. Lauffenburger, 58, of 825 Cobham Park rd.

Both were traveling west on Pennsylvania ave. west when the collision occurred. Lauffenburger said he had applied his brakes in time to avoid the accident, but they failed to operate properly.

Neither driver was injured. Damage to the Reese car totaled $550. Damage to Lauffenburger's vehicle came to $475.

Munksgard was assisted by Officer James R. Leichtenberger in the investigation.

Seen and Heard

By Gladys Printz

Mrs. William Schellhammer has returned to her home at 600 Market st., after a lengthy visit with her mother, Mrs. James Aston, in Ben Avon, Pittsburgh. While there, she attended many functions honoring her mother's birthday anniversary.

Mrs. Dennie DiPierro has just returned from Florida where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alan W. Sine, of 721 - 107th st., in Naples. During her stay, a daughter, Christa Lee, was born to Anzietta and Alan on Oct. 20. We understand the young lady weighed 9 lbs.-5 oz. and is 20 inches long.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lopez and four children of Cinnaminson, N. J., spent the weekend at the home of her mother, Mrs. Joseph A. Bevevino, 812 Fourth ave. They were accompanied by another daughter, Michelle, a student at Bloomsburg College in Bloomsburg, Pa.

And from Akeley comes word that Mr. and Mrs. Leland Haller entertained with a dinner for Mrs. Madeline Harriman of Kansas City, Mo. Mrs. Harriman has been a guest at the homes of her children and their families, Mr. and Mrs. James Michael Harriman, Yankee Bush, Mr. and Mrs. John Haller, Clarendon, and Mr. and Mrs. John Putnam, Akeley.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I want to say a few words to that big-mouth mother who was mad because her "statuesque" daughter decided to marry "a dried-up shrimp"—six inches shorter than her Venus de Milo. She was worried about her unborn grandchildren—afraid they would be punts.

I am the mother of two young men, one 5'4, the other 5'5. Both my boys are being chased night and day by women of all ages. The fact that my sons are not six-footers does not seem to matter to them. Most of the women who are running after my boys are at least 5'8 and plenty beautiful.

This brings me to another point. I've seen some of the girls described by their mothers as "statuesque." They are long drinks of water with as much shape as a string of spaghetti. They will be lucky to get any kind of husband. I hope you print this. P.S.—How tall is your daughter? Does she have a husband yet?—ON RECORD

DEAR ON: Here's your letter. Our daughter is 5'4. Yes, she has a husband. He is 6'2.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We bought a big house near the high school because we have three children of high-school age and I was sick and tired of all the driving back and forth. I am sorry to say the house has an extra bedroom. My brother has a teen-age boy he wants us to take for his last two years of high school. They live on the other side of town and the boy has been in some difficulty with the high school authorities near their home. He was not exactly expelled but there was some trouble.

I will be perfectly honest and tell you that I have enough trouble handling my own three kids and I don't want any more challenges. Our son has not smoked pot or messed with drugs that we know of, and the nephew has. I don't want this sort of influence around my kids, but I can't come out and say no.

My mother is pressuring me to take my brother's boy but I do NOT want him. Please advise at once.—DILEMMA IN DAYTON

DEAR DIL: Boarding and rooming high school kids is a gigantic responsibility. Tell your relatives, "Sorry, we can't handle it." If they get mad, so what? In a situation like this someone invariably ends up mad. Better them than you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm driving myself nuts because I can't make up my mind. Should I have a face lift?

I'm 48, good looking, good figure, divorced four years, and getting panicky. The competition for a husband in this town is fierce. The young divorcees get the cream of the crop.

Some days I think I look great. Other days I feel like an ugly old woman. I'm good at applying makeup, and in a dimly lit room I could pass for 40. In sunlight I look every day of my age and I hate it.

I've known women who have had great results with lifts—others were better off before and are sorry they did it. Please help me decide.—MOTHER EARTH VS. FATHER TIME

DEAR MOTHER: I'm taking a pass. You might be thrilled with the results—then again, you might be sorry. Of one thing I AM sure, however. If you are counting on a face lift to change your life you shouldn't have one—it won't do it. My advice is to consult with a plastic surgeon whose results you have seen and liked. His opinion will be worth a lot more than mine.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's And Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ohio Prison Inmates Make Hand Puppets For Retarded Children

Editor's note: The following article was written by Lou Torok, No. 129-606 at the Chillicothe Correctional Institute. He is serving a one-to-ten-year sentence for assault.

(c) N.Y. Times News Service CHILICOTHE, Ohio—There's something strange going on at the Chillicothe Correctional Institute, 45 miles south of Columbus. A prison guard with 20 years' experience summed it up when he said, "Well, I'll be damned."

He was surprised one day to find convicts sewing doll's clothing in the visiting room. What most impressed him was the fact that the majority of the men he saw struggling with needle and thread had been among the most ungovernable prisoners in the correctional Psychiatric Unit. Many of them had never held a regular job anywhere. Most had been unable to join with others in group activity without fighting or causing trouble.

Yet, here they were together on a project that involved them and absorbed them intensely.

One black convict was staring at the tiny garment he had just finished sewing. In a rage he tore the seams apart. The supervisor feared trouble. But, the burly inmate, biting on his lower lip, began to lay the garment out properly and to re-sew the seam. He was merely unhappy with the first job; he wanted the finished garment to be perfect.

"This is the first time in years some of these guys have done anything constructive like this," said Vince Reich, the Convict Coordinator of the doll-making project. "Actually, these men are sewing garments for hand puppets that are being made now for retarded children at Orient State Hospital."

The project began soon after Reich, a one-time forger from Cincinnati, read a newspaper story about volunteers making puppets for hospitalized children.

"It dawned on me that we had the most important commodity just lying around here waiting to be used," he said, referring to idle convicts who spent most of their days in their cells or in day halls in the Psychiatric Unit.

Prison officials gave Reich the go-ahead for the project almost as soon as they heard about his idea. Then he wrote to Mrs. Mary Lou Foster, a hospital volunteer in Little Rock, Ark., who sent a sample puppet.

Next, Reich persuaded convicts and members of the administrative staff to donate money to buy material for the pilot project. No state funds or materials were used at any time. Andrew Passen, a young psychologist at the prison, paid for the initial materials.

Charles Pentz, a burglar from Cleveland, looked over the sample puppet and began to make patterns for six sample hand puppets. He made black dolls. He made clowns. He dressed them in plain smocks and in exquisite gowns.

Soon material for the doll's clothing began to pour in from the prison staff. One woman employee walked down the hall in the Administration Office one day and found herself face to face with a tiny puppet propped on a desk wearing the exact same dress she had on. It had been fashioned from scrap material from the dress she had made herself.

At first, most of the prisoners were skeptical, but in a short time nearly 20 of 26 idle convicts were making clothing for the puppets. Previously these prisoners had been severe disciplinary problems—men who preferred to sit by themselves and do nothing, who didn't want to get involved.

The production line on a typical evening looks like the line-up of a late evening TV crime thriller.

A burglar makes the paper cones that fit inside the plastic heads.

A convict serving life for murder stuffs the hand-sewn dolls' caps with shredded foam rubber and hand stitches the back of the cap.

The garment material is laid out and the patterns are cut by Charlie Pentz, who then machine sews the basic garment.

A bank robber then attaches the garment to the head with expert hand stitching.

"These guys are actually doing all this during their own free recreation time, said Reich. "They work two hours a night three nights a week, Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Last Friday night there was a good movie on television. Not one of these guys stayed away from the doll-making session. Can you beat that?"

Y'ville Church Holding Evangelistic Meetings

MISS PARKER

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Parker, 1617 Jackson Run Road, Warren, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Beverly, to Alan Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Swanson, 300 State st., Russell.

Miss Parker is a 1970 graduate of Eisenhower High School, and is in her second year at the Wheeler School of Fashion Merchandising in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mr. Swanson is a 1969 graduate of Eisenhower High School and is a junior at Pennsylvania State University, majoring in Industrial Engineering.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Russell-Akeley Methodists Plan Lay Witness Weekend

Lay Witness Weekend for the Russell-Akeley United Methodist Churches is to be held Nov. 12, 13 and 14.

About 20 laymen from other churches are to lead in a series of activities starting Friday with a 6:30 p.m. tureen dinner and concluding with morning worship services on Sunday, followed by a luncheon.

Steve Lockovich has been appointed to act as coordinator by the United Methodist Church Board of Lay Activities, Nashville, Tenn. He has selected a group of laymen from the surrounding areas to assist him. James Fuller, a student at Asbury College in Kentucky has been selected as Youth Coordinator.

Mrs. James Nesmith is chairman of the local church committee, assisted by 12 persons acting as chairmen of the different areas of responsibility. Delbert Westfall has planned a 24-hour prayer vigil beginning Thursday at 7 a.m. and ending Friday at 7 a.m.

Breakfast Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Salapek, 857 Yankee Bush road, are holding an open house Sunday, Nov. 14 at 2 p.m. in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary. Friends, relatives, and neighbors of the couple are welcome to attend.

The Warren County Firemen's Association dinner-dance, to be held at St. Paul's Center, Saybrook, on Dec. 11 was announced at the November meeting of the Glade Township Firemen's Auxiliary held Monday. Reservations may be made by calling Robert Knapp at 723-1843. The Glade Auxiliary is to hold its Christmas party at the Mineral Well Restaurant Dec. 9 at 6 p.m.

Open house is to be held Sunday, Nov. 14 at Scandia Fire Hall in honor of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson, RD 1, Russell. The affair, scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m., is being given by the couple's children.

For ease in preparation, shred cheese while cold but bring to room temperature before adding to a recipe.

Opening lead: Four of ♠. Altho the odds were admittedly overwhelmingly in declarer's favor when the dummy was spread, his failure on the deal must be charged to inferior technique rather than bad luck. The small slam in hearts was reached with dispatch. When South opened the bidding with one heart, North's hand was worth 20 points in support and he flashed an immediate slam signal by making a jump shift to three diamonds. South raised to four diamonds and North proceeded to check back for aces and kings. Finding that the partnership was lacking one secondary control, he settled for a small slam in hearts.

West opened the four of clubs and dummy won the trick with the ace. The play appeared to be quite routine to South. He drew trumps with two pulls, played the ace of spades and then finessed dummy's jack. East was in with the queen and he exited with a spade to the king.

The king of diamonds was cashed to test that suit in case a singleton appeared. When both opponents followed with small cards, a diamond was led to the ace. West showed out, and South—muttering something about the bad breaks—conceded himself to be down one on the deal.

Despite the highly unfavorable distribution, South's contract was actually iron-clad provided that the trumps divided no worse than three-one. It is suggested that he lead a trump to his king at trick two. When both opponents follow suit, he can claim 12 tricks.

A club is ruffed with the ten of hearts and the remaining trumps are drawn with the queen of hearts. A diamond is led to the queen, followed by the ace, king and another spade. By refusing the spade finesse, South straddles the lead on the opposition at a time when the clubs have been stripped from both hands.

The player that goes in with the queen of spades cannot exit in either black suit without giving South a ruff and discard which permits him to dispose of his potential diamond loser. If the diamonds are divided three-two, the contract is assured regardless of how the hand is played. But—if the player who goes in with the queen of spades has all the remaining diamonds, he must exit with the jack and thereby exposes himself to a successful finesse against his ten.

In the present case, East is in, returns the jack of diamonds and North wins with the queen. The nine is led and whether or not East covers, South picks up the suit without loss. The only trick taken by the defense is the queen of spades.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1971

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Have some things changed since you first planned them? Then re-evaluate past and present thinking and trends. Don't be guilty of mediocre effort. Be vigilant but serene.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—No labor, no activity will be in vain if plans are thorough and worthwhile. Venus' position favors artistic pursuits and romance.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Good Mercury influences encourage all written matters, communications generally. Along other lines, be alert lest you commit foolish or needless errors.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—View all matters realistically now. Where can YOU help to improve a situation or straighten out another's warped judgment? Your wits are keen; use them smartly all day.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Waste motion could be costly, as could thoughtless words and procrastination. Solar influences stimulate your competence and gifts of leadership.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Leave nothing to chance; stress the meticulousness for detail and the accuracy for which the Virgoan is noted. In discussions, try to persuade gently, not with force.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—A good period for making long-range plans, also for completing pending matters. Give your views if asked but, even if they are not adopted, yield to authority graciously.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Besides regular activities, give some time to imminent needs and desires of children, community, commitments of long standing. In discussions, be the helpful mediator.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Acquiesce where such submission is due but, at the same time, keep studying, trying out the good ideas you know can be made workable.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Emphasize your resourcefulness and sense of responsibility now. It will pay off in the week ahead. Do not let down in effort until assignments are concluded.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Is it better to change a plan to insure more proficiency, to prevent bungling? Think carefully. Just ONE more careful step may be the answer. Planet Uranus is well aspected.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Friendly Neptune influences especially favor doctors, nurses; research, confidential and educational affairs; also, maritime interests.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a brilliant intellect, tremendous ambition and a dynamic personality. You should have a scientific education since you have the talent needed to excel in many of its branches, notably: chemistry, engineering and medicine. However, your intense desire for wealth and power may lead you into the business world, where you would probably become a leader. Other fields in which you could reach an enviable success: literature and the theater. Either would give you a marvelous chance to dramatize your emotions. Birthdate of: Thomas Bailey Aldrich, American author; Maude Adams, world-renowned actress.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

NEW THEORY ON DIABETES
(c) By The Chicago Tribune

Two pairs of cells—alpha and beta—found in the pancreas have diametrically opposed actions. Beta cells manufacture insulin that lowers the blood sugar; alpha cells produce an essential hormone, glucagon, that elevates the level. Researchers have concentrated on insulin for years, but glucagon is now getting their attention.

In the normal individual, there is a balance between insulin and glucagon. These hormones control the movement of glucose (a sugar) and certain fats and proteins into and out of cells thruout the body in accordance with energy needs.

When food is plentiful, there is increased secretion of insulin to promote glucose storage and lower the blood sugar level. In starvation, the opposite occurs. Glucagon converts foods into glucose and releases it into the bloodstream to raise the sugar level. The activity takes place in the liver where glucose is stored.

Shortly after a person eats a normal meal, the blood sugar rises due to glucagon. But the hormone also stimulates insulin to bring down the level to normal. The diabetic has an insulin deficit and, as a result, his blood sugar level remains elevated for hours after eating. The excess is eliminated via the urine.

There are new theories that diabetes results from too little glucagon, not too little insulin. There is not enough of the hormone to stimulate the secretion of insulin when the blood sugar rises. In contrast, there also is evidence that in diabetes there are unusually high levels of glucagon that keep the blood sugar level high. If this is true, diabetes is a hormonal disease—too little insulin and too much glucagon. By administering a glucagon suppressant, we might be able to lower the dosage of insulin needed by the diabetic.

Glucagon has an unusually wide range of action. It can be used in the treatment of hypoglycemia, a condition in which the blood sugar level goes too low. It is also a heart tonic and will be tried in the treatment of heart failure and cardiac arrhythmias.

TOMORROW: Excessive Blinking.
Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

SORE LIPS
K. C. writes: Can anything be done to relieve soreness of the corners of the mouth?

REPLY
Yes. There are several causes of irritation or inflammation of the lip angles, varying from contact with lipstick, dentifrice, the sun or to a vitamin B complex deficiency. Malocclusion or poorly fitted dentures may be responsible. Occasionally, a fungal or bacterial infection moves in. Appropriate treatments are available. For example, antibiotic ointments are useful when infection exists.

MONUMENTAL TASK
Mrs. F. L. writes: I'm 5 feet tall and weigh 230 pounds. Is there any chance of going back to the weight I used to be 37 years ago—115 pounds?

REPLY
I doubt it; but if it can be done at all, it will require strict adherence to a diet. Success, however, is unlikely as few people return to the slim figure of their youth.

TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT
P. J. writes: If an allergy is not treated, will it last thruout life?

REPLY
Not necessarily. Hypersensitivity to a specific irritant may last a short time and never recur; or it may be a lifelong affair. The physical and emotional health at the time plays a role.

Our Players: Long May They Reign

FROM MY SIDE OF THE PODIUM

By Floyd Williams, Music Critic

It would be safe to say that almost every town in America has a "Little Theatre Workshop" or a group with a similar title. However, I will take the liberty of saying that we have the oldest continuous running amateur theatre group in America and you better believe that that is "saying something." Everyone wants to get "into the act." That is a line used by burlesque comedians from way back and when they said it they meant, "get lost." Here it means that four times a year, if you have the courage and meet the standards set down by the current director, (each of the four productions has a different director) and pay an outrageously small assessment, you may have your turn at the boards. If not this year, well, there is always next year. Al Hilse, president and Regina Hilse, president-elect, have tried to see that their program committee is exposed to current material worthy of an amateur theater group of such long standing.

involved, I found out that they only functioned for part of the year and it was far from a workshop. It was actually a bunch of people interested in the theatre who had in some way come in contact for a brief time with the professional end of it, either as an actor or in production. These people work hard all day for their bread and butter and in the evenings, until the wee hours, devote their time to the perfection of The Warren Players.

I am quite sure the Players would like to have a workshop here that functioned every day. It is hard enough to get people to join the "Y" here let alone a fully organized theatre workshop. I know. I tried it. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we, as a community, could support the Players so that they could have such a function? There are many people here that have many talents worth the developing and there are the people here with the ability to move them on so that they could realize fulfillment.

This year it is "Fiddler On The Roof" first up at bat, and the all-out seriousness of the production staff is something to behold. There are moments in rehearsal when I think I am in the 52nd street ANTA theatre. Of course the relief is to find that air of non-professionalism that exists in some of the people who have never been on the stage before and are enjoying the newness and excitement that can only come from a first experience. Unlike most small theatre groups, The Warren Players pick extremely ambitious undertakings. They do not seem to play it safe by any means. My first experience with them was in last year's production of "I Do, I Do" and I found it difficult to make the transition from the professional theatre to the amateur theatre. I found myself making demands on myself both as participant and as onlooker that were not necessary. The amateur theatre, if it is to hold together, must deal with the materials available. This is not a continuous theatre work shop that functions every day and we should not expect the every day results. This is a group of people with a desire to bring to their community something it is not readily in contact with - Live theater.

My first contact with the Warren Players was in a large New York periodical expounding on its antiquity and my first reaction was, "Wow! a theatre workshop that functions every day in a town of some twenty thousand people." I can remember discussing it with some of my colleagues and wondering what the secret was. After I arrived and became

— PIANO AND MUSIC TRAINING —
I am interested in giving piano instructions to children up to 10 yrs. of age. Because of my experience in elementary education (BS Education, Indiana Univ. of Pa.) I see a need for selecting individual programs from the wide variety of musical approaches aimed at inspiring a real musical interest in young children. Will teach in your home or mine. Call 723-6918 for appt. to discuss my ideas.

ONE FRIENDLY CALL DOES IT ALL!

When you have something you'd like to buy or sell; when you're anxious to find a tenant for a room or apartment; or are seeking a place to live; when you want to hire help or are looking for employment; want to find a lost article; or place a personal message in the newspaper... one friendly call does it all!

THE WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER
CLASSIFIED DIRECT NUMBER IS 723-1400

When you place your call, a pleasant voice will answer your call and will help you word your ad for quick response. Well-trained, efficient, friendly and helpful, the young lady who answers your call will be your "personal advertising expert."

The friendly service makes placing a Want Ad a pleasant experience.

PHONE 723-1400

TO KILL AN AD OUT OF THE PAPER, WE MUST BE NOTIFIED BY 5 P.M. NO "KILLS" ACCEPTED AFTER THAT HOUR.

DEADLINES: Commercial display copy noon of the day previous; want ad copy 5 p.m. day previous; Dept. open weekdays 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Art and layout service available at no extra cost. We invite the opportunity to discuss your advertising budget and problems.

Welfare Reform's Cost

The 54 different welfare systems that have evolved in the states and territories of America satisfy no one. There is general agreement that all systems should be unified and reformed. However, there is much disagreement on the type, extent and cost of reform.

After study of the issues, the League of Women Voters of Warren Area, along with the national league organization support the recent coalition proposals announced by Senator Ribicoff of Connecticut. The proposals were offered as amendments to the Administration-backed bill passed by the U.S. House of Representatives in June.

The House bill is now being held in the Senate Finance Committee headed by Senator Russell Long of Louisiana who opposes the reform measure principally due to its cost. The League of Women Voters contends that keeping the bill from Senate consideration until well into next year subjects the issue to undue political pressure in an election year.

Both the House-passed bill and the amendments proposed will increase the cost of welfare. To taxpayers concerned now about the cost of welfare, this may be just the kind of reform they don't want.

Welfare reform will cost more nationally, but it will do more in permitting recipients to help themselves. Part of the current welfare scandal is that it delivers so little for what it costs. Reform will correct glaring inequities among the states, and it should relieve state budgets by placing major funding with the top branch of government best able to pay it, the federal government.

Under the Ribicoff amendments a family of four with no income would be granted $3,000 a year. This amount is lower than now granted in Pennsylvania, but it would raise grants in many states. Pennsylvania would be required to continue to pay 70 per cent of these supplemental payments with gradual reductions over a five-year period until the entire public assistance program would be fully federalized.

As a work incentive, the working poor would be allowed to retain $720 of their annual earnings plus 40 per cent of additional income without reduction of grants.

The amendments provide for 300,000 public service jobs to be filled by persons now on welfare rolls. General assistance, now fully funded by states, would be included in the federal system.

Mothers with children under age 6 would be exempt from work registration requirement and no recipient would be required to train for a job unless suitable day care and job following that training were available. The provision of suitable day care is one of the high expenses of the reform measure. One and a half billion dollars is proposed for these centers.

The over-all cost of the proposed Ribicoff reform is 10 billion dollars. Economists consider this huge amount in relation to the entire resources of the country. It is predicted that United States production of goods and services will top the trillion-dollar mark, and that federal revenues will increase by 10 billion dollars a year during the 70's. In a federal budget of $200 billion, the amount for public assistance would be a relatively low 5 per cent.

At the outset, states would receive an estimated 3.4 billion of fiscal relief a year. The financing of the national program of public assistance would be shifted to the federal government, the top branch with the greatest revenues and the broadest tax base.

The League of Women Voters believes that welfare reform is a critical domestic priority, essential to fiscal and social betterment in the nation. The Ribicoff proposals have been compared with other plans, and the league holds it represents the most workable approach to the welfare problem. It sets national standards by correcting state inequities. It relieves the state budgets, encourages people to work, provides jobs, job training, and day care centers.

The League of Women Voters of Warren Area urges citizens to write to Senators Hugh Scott and Richard Schweiker. U.S.

Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510, to express their views on the Ribicoff amendments.

Trade School Now Taking Applications

The Thaddeus Stevens Trade School, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, is now receiving applications for admissions for the coming school year, beginning September, 1972. Stevens is a free trade school, maintained and operated by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the training and education of orphans and other deserving boys who meet the standards of need established by the Board of Directors and the Commonwealth.

It is the purpose of the school to provide free of charge room and board as well as shop and classroom instruction. The courses offered are approved by the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

A small number of tuition students who do not meet the standards of need are accepted each year. These students must submit a tuition application which can be obtained from the Admissions Office.

Two year courses are offered in the following trades: Electrical Construction, Electronics, Machine Shop Practice, Printing, Automotive Mechanics, Brick Masonry, Baking, Cabinet Making, Carpentry, Architectural Drafting, Mechanical Drafting, Plumbing, Commercial Sheet Metal, and Auto Body Repairs.

Detailed information about any of the courses offered may be obtained from the school by writing to the Admissions Office, Stevens Trade School, Lancaster, Pennsylvania 17602.

BOOKS ARE BUGGED
LONDON (AP)—Bugged books are cutting losses at Britain's college libraries.

Books are fitted with a magnetized strip. The strip sets off an alarm if the book is carried between two pillars at the library exit. In lending libraries, the strip can be desensitized when the book is borrowed legitimately and resensitized on return.
